Today, the San Antonio Police Department unveils the latest in mobile technology for Homeland Security with its maiden deployment at the Final Four Games. The new Command Trailer is armed with the most sophisticated technological equipment available and will host representatives from SAPD, SAFD, FBI, EMS, ATF and SA Metro Health Department. Among the special features are:

- 42" Gateway Plasma televisions
- Time Warner Cable TV system compatibility
- Tracstar Satellite uplink and downlink satellite dish
- Satellite phone capabilities
- Gateway multimedia computers (laptop and notepads)
- GIS mapping capability
- 56' retractable pneumatic mast with color camera
- Microwave downlink for live video feeds from remote locations

Other features include:

- 12 work stations
- 15 landline phone stations
- 17 cellular phone stations
- Conference room with computers
- Equipment room
- Fax machine

The trailer contains redundant systems to allow commanders to communicate electronically whether through phone lines, wireless modems or satellite uplink/downlinks. It can also be powered through outside sources that allows for indefinite self-sufficiency.

Funding through various sources made this purchase possible.
